

Welcome to the summer edition of Copyright News, a quarterly update from RightsDirect for licensees and anyone interested in copyright and content in the workplace.

In the Spotlight: RightsDirect at the INTA 2014 Annual Meeting in Hong Kong

Companies work hard to protect their intellectual property from misuse by others. So it only makes sense to respect the copyright of others when sharing and re-using proprietary content.

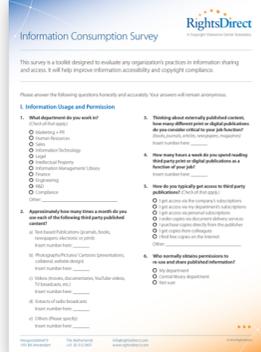

RightsDirect, alongside its parent company, Copyright Clearance Center, showcased copyright solutions at INTA's 2014 Annual Conference from 10 May – 14 May. RightsDirect's

Kate Alzapiedi and CCC's Stephen Garfield and Iris Geik discussed copyright licensing solutions that allow companies to demonstrate respect for intellectual property and get the rights to re-use and share the content they need. More than 8,500 professionals from 140 countries attended the annual event, which is in its 136th year.

In a featured article in Trademarks and Brands Online (TBO) distributed at the event, RightsDirect's Kate Alzapiedi discusses how broad license agreements can help organizations avoid copyright infringement while sharing and storing externally published information.

New! Information Consumption Survey Template

Educated employees are the best protection against copyright infringement. But how educated are your employees on copyright procedures? How much information do they share? Is your organization exposed to copyright infringement?

RightsDirect has developed an interactive PDF to allow you to assess how much information is stored and shared, how employees access information and what their overall knowledge of copyright is. With this tool, you will know what problems exist in your copyright compliance program, so that you can address them.

This survey is designed as a template to determine how your employees use information. Pick questions that are relevant to your organization's needs and distribute them to individuals across departments to get an overall understanding of your compliance program.

Coming Soon: ISO Titles

The International Organization for Standardization, known as ISO, seeks to advocate for commercial and industrial standards. Its publications are widely used by organizations worldwide, who wish to comply with these standards.

RightsDirect, alongside its parent company CCC, is pleased to announce that they will be adding select ISO titles to the Multinational Copyright License repertory this summer. If you have any further questions regarding ISO titles, please contact your account manager or info@rightsdirect.com. The official list of ISO titles added will not be published until later this summer.

Publishing Gone Digital

Jens Bammel, International Publishers Association (IPA)

Publishers face unique challenges in today's digital, global environment. In RightsDirect's podcast series, Mitja Linss speaks to Jens Bammel, the secretary general at the International Publishers Association about how technology impacts publishing and the efforts being made to harmonize copyright on a global scale. They discuss the evolution of publishing and the quest to find its value in the modern era.

The Librarian in the Digital Age

Ryan Jones, Copyright Clearance Center (CCC)

In the latest edition of Copyright Worldwide, Mitja Linss returns to discuss with Ryan Jones, Senior Director at Copyright Clearance Center, the changing role of the librarian in the digital age. With the tendency for self-service increasing, the librarian's role has evolved. Jones explores what a new blend of content access means for the enterprise and what changes are happening as a result.
